

Health Care Antitrust

Our attorneys have a wide range of experience representing clients with antitrust and trade regulation issues, especially health care industry participants, including counseling on business strategy and compliance issues, obtaining merger clearances, representation in government investigations, and representation in government and private litigation. The Firm's attorneys with antitrust and trade regulation expertise include a former trial attorney of the Antitrust Division of the United States Department of Justice, as well as several other former Department of Justice trial attorneys from the Department's other divisions.

Our Antitrust and Trade Regulation Practice Group often combines cross-discipline capabilities with the Firm's Health Care, Intellectual Property, and Merger and Acquisitions Practice Groups. The Practice Group's attorneys have experience practicing before the DOJ, FTC, FCC, European Commission and the utility boards of numerous states.
